

Privacy Policy

Gorge Networks is committed to preserving the privacy of its customers and protecting their personal data. Gorge Networks will not sell, trade, rent or release your personal information (name, email address, postal address, telephone, etc.) to others without your consent, unless ordered by subpoena in a court of law.

We respect and work to protect your privacy. We do not collect, monitor, sell, or otherwise distribute any information related to your internet usage history. If you have any questions about this privacy statement, the practices of this site, or your dealings with Gorge Networks you may contact us.

Information retained by Gorge Networks:

Gorge Networks keeps information about its customers such as names, addresses, telephone numbers, email addresses and details about Gorge Networks services used by the customer. All such information is considered private. Gorge Networks also keeps logs of some technical information pertaining to customer connectivity and email processing. These logs are retained on a temporary basis to aid in customer support. No logs are kept indefinitely. The only circumstances wherein Gorge Networks will disclose any of the above-mentioned information to a third party are:

- In the course of providing services our customers have specifically requested, Gorge Networks may make some of this information available to our affiliates in order to fulfill the requirements of order processing.
- In the event that we receive a legitimate, legally-mandated request for customer information, Gorge Networks will respond only within the narrow scope of that request.

Gorge Networks will not otherwise disclose any private information about its customers to any other third party.
